Provenance: Lyn Cecil. Ms. Cecil recalls: 'I was first introduced to Bill Gibb designs around '77 by my friend Maria Moulton, who was married to Ted Moulton, farmer and TV celebrity. Bill's collections were available in Browns I think, Harrods definitely and then in his own boutique in Bond Street. He was there one day with his friend, the designer John Bates, and we all got chatting... I loved Bill Gibb's designs...they were avant-garde and unlike other designers. Flamboyant is probably the word!...[The] late 70s-80s... for me it was an era of Ferraris, Royal Film Performances, property developers, the City exploding - in both senses of the word with the IRA and influx of international banks. A time to frequent Michelin-starred restaurants, the bars at the 5-star hotels, Annabel's - and to enjoy villas, yachts and a Porsche in Cap Ferrat. All of us "nouveaux" grabbing the best that life and London could offer!' (Dimensions: chest approx 96cm, 38in, waist approx 71-82cm, 28-32in) (Qty: 3) £200-300

- 225 A Japanese fan, autographed by Hubert de Givenchy, 1993, signed in black marker pen

The fan was signed by Hubert de Givenchy for the A/W haute couture show held in July 1993. It was an extremely hot day in Paris and the Salle Napoleon of the Grand Hotel did not have air conditioning. The plain fans were hurriedly acquired to ease the discomfort of his clients and placed on each seat, but M. Givenchy, always the perfectionist, personalised them with his own signature. The following year air con was installed. (Dimensions: 23cm, 9in long) £200-300

- 226 A Fendi mink fur coat, probably 1990s, labelled, the curved hem falling just above the knee, two pockets, front hook fastenings and lined in a monogrammed silk

'Ossie Clark, 1965/74', Judith Watt writes of the design: 'It was short and simple, but Celia's print of orange and green flowers is reminiscent of designs produced by Poiret's Martine workshops and very very new for the time, an exciting indication of the Art Deco influence that was to be the feature of some of her most successful patterns. It was their love of the earlier 20th-century Orientalism and the inspiration they took from it that was to set their work apart from their peers.' For a photograph by Norman Bates of Ossie and Celia standing in front of the dress, see p.56.

The George Best boutique was opened in Manchester in 1967 in partnership with friend and fellow footballer Mike Summerbee. The collection, aimed at the 'extrovert male', typically featured sweaters, tweed jackets, purple corduroys, purple pairs of trousers with yellow striped belts and mustard trousers with blue striped belts. A small advert was posted in a local paper for the boutique in Bridge street, Sale, announcing its March 15 opening. This attracted a scrum of teenagers and press, which caused the busy A56 main road that ran past the front door to come to a grinding halt, exacerbated by drivers hoping to catch a glimpse of the football god. If Manchester United was playing at home, pre-match he liked to spend the morning in his boutique, mixing with fans. A tell tale sign that the star was inside the shop was the sight of his Jaguar E-type sports car parked outside.
The business was initially successful and prompted the opening of a second store on Cross St in Manchester's
